

As seen in School Inc., tutoring groups, or hagwons, like this one in South Korea, are big business and provide educators incentive to continuously better their techniques, with the highest-paid teachers earning millions of dollars.