

Low-cost private schools in India were once regarded as a way to take advantage of the poor, but now routinely outperform government schools across the country, as seen in School Inc.